Good etiquette is essential, yet many organisations only address etiquette at induction time. As a result, bad habits and unhelpful behaviour can creep into the workplace. As protocol and standards erode, team conflict and dysfunction are proven to increase. Many relationships with customers are becoming less formal but it’s critical to embed strong ethics.

Behavioural surveys conclude that employees like being greeted in the morning and it’s hard to believe that some staff today don’t even say “Good Morning”. And if you recognise poor manners internally, you need to question what service standards your customers receive. The number one complaint of customers is usually related to a perceived rudeness from the organisation.

An old Irish saying reminds us “A rising tide floats all the boats”. This course is ideal if you believe that standards in your workplace could be raised higher.

This unique course looks at workplace etiquette in the following seven areas:

1. Writing & Email Etiquette
2. Meetings Etiquette (internal and external)
3. Social Media Etiquette
4. Communication Etiquette
5. Personal Hygiene Etiquette
6. Timeliness Etiquette
7. Cultural Etiquette

“Don’t reserve your best behaviour for special occasions. You can’t have two sets of manners, two social codes - one for those you admire and want to impress, another for those whom you consider unimportant. You must be the same to all people”
— L Watson
